

LIBRARY TRENDS

Fall 2004

53(2) 265–394

Consumer Health Issues, Trends, and Research: Part 1. Strategic Strides toward a Better Future

Tammy L. Mays

Issue Editor

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
GRADUATE SCHOOL OF
LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SCIENCE

Consumer Health Issues, Trends, and Research: Part 1. Strategic Strides toward a Better Future

CONTENTS

Introduction Tammy L. Mays	265
Meeting the Health Information Needs of Diverse Populations Kristine M. Alpi and Barbara M. Bibel	268
Where Am I to Go? Use of the Internet for Consumer Health Information by Two Vulnerable Communities Ellen Gay Detlefsen	283
Working with Immigrant and Refugee Populations: Issues and Hmong Case Study Margaret (Peg) Allen, Suzanne Matthew, and Mary Jo Boland	301
Watch Your Language Heidi T. Sandstrom	329
Medical Textbooks: Can Lay People Read and Understand Them? Lynda M. Baker and Claudia J. Gollop	336
Why Develop Web-Based Health Information Workshops for Consumers? Diane K. Kovacs	348
Training the Health Information Seeker: Quality Issues in Health Information Web Sites Javier Crespo	360

MedlinePlus®: The National Library of Medicine® Brings Quality Information to Health Consumers
Naomi Miller, Rebecca J. Tyler, and Joyce E. B. Backus	375
About the Contributors	389